Meet Our New Graduates

A college education is more than just earning a degree — it's a powerful pathway to personal growth, economic opportunity, and positive social change. It is always a profoundly special moment when one of our kids graduates from college. Remembering the day they became a part of our family, the years of growth, the wonderful “life moments” that lead to the road they travel into their adult lives. A time to celebrate!

Varsha completed her bachelor's degree in Business Administration. She is actively looking for an internship to start her career in marketing in the finance sector. She dreams of getting her MBA at some point and owning her own business one day. Varsha loves sports, cooking and photography. “I want to stand on my own two feet,” Varsha says.

Sandeep Has Hearing Aids

When Sandeep first came to Hope Now he was a quiet child who kept to himself. Early on, during one of his monthly visits to the health clinic, we came to know he had significant hearing loss. He suffered from years of ear infections that left a good deal of scarring which led to significant hearing loss. As you can imagine, school was difficult because he could not hear. Once we figured that out, he had a number of surgeries and continued healthcare to monitor his hearing. This year, he decided it was time to get some hearing aids. He could no longer hear in his right ear and his left ear was down to 40%. Seeing the smile on his face when he first turned them on was priceless.

Sandeep will be taking his exams in September. With his new hearing aids, he is looking forward to a successful outcome.

It is not unusual for the kids to have ongoing medical issues, even as adults. As a family, we continue to support them as they navigate life and all of its complexities, firsts, great outcomes and the times of challenge when support is needed the most.

Consider a Monthly Sponsorship

Sustainable giving in the form of a monthly sponsorship provides stability. For just $49 a month, you can sponsor one of our kids and help us meet the needs required to maintain a quality education. This monthly support helps pay for a monthly metro pass, school supplies, tuition and more. Sony is in her second year studying at St. Pious Junior College.
