First Year of College

Starting a fresh chapter in life takes courage. Starting the first year of college is a big change that can be a challenge, but is also a time of growth and excitement.

Sony started her first year of college at St. Jude Women's College of Education this year. Sony wants to be a teacher. In India, parents are required to visit the college to speak with professors about how the students are doing. We attended these parent teacher conferences and heard about the great job Sony is doing. She attends class every day and is especially enjoying the day a week the students attend a local school to observe a teacher for the day.

Computers Needed

There is a sponsorship opportunity to equip some of our students with the technology they need to learn, build skills and prepare for meaningful careers in AI, cybersecurity and communication technology. We currently have 7 students studying in this track and the various schools they are attending are mandating a personal computer to continue in their studies. Each laptop needs to be specifically designed to meet the software requirements for their programs.

Each laptop is approximately $1,000 which will come fully loaded with all of the necessary software and security systems in place. We need to purchase these by the end of October. The first quarter of school will end the second week of October. Then the kids get a two-week break and return to class in November. They are required to have their needed laptops when they return to class at that time.

We are incredibly proud of the fact that several of these students secured a spot in prestigious engineering schools in Hyderabad. We want to continue to support them as they work toward their goals and this is a part of that journey - supplying them with what they need to succeed.

We are asking our Hope Now family to help us purchase the laptops for our students. We have one shared goal - to invest in their education and future.

Thank you for considering this goal as part of your charitable giving. Share this with family and friends and help us get to our goal of $7,000.

Consider a Monthly Sponsorship

Sustainable giving in the form of a monthly sponsorship provides stability. For just $49 a month, you can sponsor one of our kids and help us meet the needs required to maintain a quality education. This monthly support helps pay for a monthly metro pass, school supplies, tuition and more. Sandhya is studying Computer Science with an emphasis on Artificial Intelligence at Loyola University.
